Dear Mrs. Stunklee,

I have enjoyed being in your English class
this past year very much.

I want to wish you the best of luck
in everything you do in the future.

There is really no need in my saying
"remember me" as, well, How could you forget?! - I am sure that no matter how much longer you teach you will never run across anyone that is as poor a speller or talks so much.

P.S. Have a real nice
vacation - it!
Luck again,
Lynn Davies (Cousin) 10-3

Mr. & Mrs.

I have thoroughly
enjoyed your English
class - believe it or not you got pretty much into my English studies. I hope to have you for my English
next year.

Sincerely Jimmy & Gertrude

Best of luck, always to a really wonderful English Teacher. Have a nice vacation (you really deserve it) and I hope to see you next year.

e entered Wakefield in 1953 as sophomores, but we were referred to as The Seniors since our class was to be the first to graduate. We looked apprehensively at the half-completed building, the mud on which it floated, and the steel girders and wires which entangled it. However, out of this chaos grew a school of which we are proud.

Much was expected of us by the faculty and our parents; we felt, therefore, a keen sense of responsibility for setting standards of scholarship and conduct that would be a challenge to those who follow. This was not easy because many of us entered Wakefield after having attended schools in various sections of our country and were accustomed to following instead of establishing traditions. We made adjustments and friends quickly, however, and by the time our junior year had been completed, our school spirit and ideals were clearly defined. In retrospect, we recognize opportunities that were neglected and tasks that were slighted. We have tried, however, to leave some direction for those who will follow us so they may profit by our experience. In turn we know they will strive to strengthen the foundations we have laid and improve the standards we have established.

When we reached our junior year, we felt the need for a book which would illustrate the important years—the years of our development, and also one which would serve as a guide for the year-book staff. From this need THE STARSTONE was created and was known as a picture book. This year your STARSTONE is complete and has been graduated to the category of year-books. By depicting the memorable events and activities of the 1956 senior class, your STARSTONE hopes to represent successfully the first class to graduate.

For at least three reasons, the publication of this yearbook is an important event in the history of Wakefield High School. First of all, it is important because it marks the graduation of Wakefield's first senior class. Secondly, it is important because it is the first of similar publications which will appear annually to commemorate the departure of the graduation class; each of which will become a challenging exercise in compressed design as it attempts to record with thoughtful and discriminating clarity the life of the school. And thirdly, it is important because a hard working, creative yearbook staff has produced a yearbook of excellent design which will bring credit to the school and which possesses intrinsic worth as an important school document.

The 1955-56 staff has accorded me the very real privilege of making the dedication of this yearbook. Acting for the members of the annual staff, I hereby dedicate this yearbook to the 1956 graduating class, without whom this annual would have no point and to Mr. Rupert F. Mouré, yearbook sponsor, without whose rich contributions this publication would not be the unique document that it is.

The first senior class has for the past three years provided stimulation and direction for student activities. School traditions, student organization, academic achievement records, and records in interscholastic competition, have been established under their leadership, I have come to regard our seniors with affection and hold them worthy of this dedication.

Mr. Mouré's understanding of design possibilities; his superior ability to stimulate the creative powers of the high school students; and his very real gift for helping students find a cause capable of evoking and holding their devotion make him particularly worthy of this dedication.

There are many reasons in addition to the ones set forth above that make this citation appropriate. Any member of the staff and student body could enumerate them as well as I. It is a pleasure to make this dedication to an important student group, the senior class, and to a respected member of the Wakefield staff and to know that it will be received with universal approbation.

At first, it was difficult to imagine that it was necessary to assemble a group of teachers with the varied areas of experience demonstrated by our faculty. We were incapable of perceiving that a group of teachers could do more than prepare us academically for our future lives. But as we face graduation we recognize the many benefits and opportunities our faculty has offered us. Guiding, suggesting and sometimes directing, they assisted us in establishing ideals and traditions of which we can now be proud. We realize now that they are not only teachers but individual persons, and we extend our gratitude to our teachers who have offered us the utmost in thorough preparation.

There is something unique and satisfying in being the "first" in any enterprise.

You, who are the first students to graduate from Wakefield High School, were also the first high school students to enroll there. For three years your class has been first.

You have had a high privilege — that of establishing customs and traditions which may go on for a hundred years at your fine school. You have set excellent standards of achievement which, I also hope, may be maintained at Wakefield for the next century and more.

As you go out from your wonderful Wakefield, I cherish the hope that you will never relinquish the feeling that you can be first in the things that really matter in life. You can always be first in high ideals and honest effort. You can always be first in patriotism and loyalty.

Wakefield was built to build good citizens. As the first class to graduate, may you always be first in life's important attitudes and efforts.

Since Wakefield opened we have had the task of setting precedents and traditions for those who follow. We were aware of these opportunities afforded us, and we met them not only with respect but enthusiasm.

Now our impending graduation makes us more aware of the excitement of being a senior. As we prepare for graduation, we hope that we have been able to leave to the underclassmen, a clear foundation upon which to build, and, more important still, a promise of the joy and excitement of being seniors.

Arlington Youth on Sub

Va. Engineer An Observer On Thresher

CHARLOTTESVILLE, April 11—(AP)—Kenneth R. Corcoran, 47-year-old civilian engineer listed aboard the nuclear submarine Thresher, has been with Sperry Rand field engineering division for about four years.

Most of the time he has been assigned to Sperry Piedmont, a Sperry Rand affiliate, in Charlottesville.

Corcoran, a navy lieutenant in World War II, is a trouble shooter for his firm, associates said.

He flew to New England Monday for the sub tests. His wife drove up the same day. They planned to return together in the family car today.

His wife, Priscilla, is visiting her mother in East Lynn, Mass.

The Corcorans have three sons, all apparently away from home. The Corcorans live in Albemarle county, near Charlottesville.

He was believed to have been aboard the sub to observe the operation of equipment manufactured here by Sperry Piedmont.

A second Virginian, Richard C. Hall of Arlington, also was abroad. He was a navy crewman. His next-of-kin were listed as his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Willard Hall of 2702 South Cleveland st., Arlington.

Hall was graduated in 1960 from Wakefield High School where he was a track athlete.

Hall, 23-year-old radar electronics technician, entered the navy after a year at Washington's Columbia Prep. He had been active in Hi-Y work at Wakefield.

His father is assistant superintendent of construction and maintenance division at the Federal Bureau of Engraving.

Hall has two brothers and two sisters, all younger.

activities

school requires not only tradition and standards but should also offer a means of developing the many facets of a student's personality. Therefore, we felt the need for an activity system which would serve as a relief from our academic routine. Between books and exams, lectures and projects, we formed and took part in our first activities . . . dances . . . banquets . . . variety shows. French Club to Forum . . . our second year we improved our program, offering a wide scope for our varied interests. With our senior year came more serious interests . . . honor societies . . . dramatic productions. Now we leave to those who follow an activity system by which their education at Wakefield may be broadened.

Student council

The Wakefield Student Council, consisting of the student council officers, the class presidents and the class vice-presidents, successfully carried out the following program this year: to carry on school business, encourage student participation, create a closer relationship between the faculty and student body, and to establish ideals and traditions. These accomplishments the Council succeeded in completing through the forums and interclub council, various committees working on school projects, and by sending representatives to conventions in different parts of the nation. Although it has worked on and completed many outstanding jobs, the Council feels that without the cooperation of the Student Body it could not have been so successful.

ational honor society

The purpose of the Philomothion Chapter of the National Honor Society at Wakefield is to create an enthusiasm for scholarship, stimulate a desire to render service, promote worthy leadership, and encourage the development of character in students.

Active membership is open to students in their junior and senior years. The activities of the Honor Society this year have included supervising College Night, choosing a chapter name, and revising their Constitution.

Philomothion, a Greek word meaning "Love of Learning," seems quite fitting for the Society.

The Spanish National Honor Society, named after a famous Spanish author, Juan Valera, is composed of students who have taken two or more years of Spanish and have maintained an honor average.

The organization has sponsored bake sales and hopes to sponsor after-school candy sales. In the future the Juan Valera Chapter plans to have Spanish speakers, movies, and music to further the understanding of Spanish-speaking countries.

Quill and scroll

This year, Chi Hi-Y was in full swing. They inducted 12 new members in one swoop at the beginning of the year, giving them 24 members in all, 3 sophomores, 8 juniors and 8 seniors. Their first activity was sending 2 representatives to the Hi-Y in Arlington Training Camp, thus making themselves the only Hi-Y in Arlington County eligible for honor rating. This honor rating has been their main objective for the year. During the football season they acted as policemen at the junior high home games and gave a half-time show at the Wakefield-Falls Church varsity game. They also had 2 representatives at the Central Atlantic Area Y.M.C.A. Conference. At Christmas time Chi helped Sigma Tri Hi-Y set up their Christmas exhibit and later went caroling with them at Anderson Clinic. Their long term projects this year were raising money for the Y.M.C.A. World Service Program and setting up hall markers in the school. Chi-Hi-Y wishes to thank Mr. Diffenbaugh, their sponsor, for the wonderful supervision and guidance he has given them.

The Rod and Reel Club was formed to promote better casting skill and fishing habits among those Junior and Senior High School boys interested in fishing. Activities of the club include the reviewing of films on fishing and, the planning of a camping and fishing trip to be held this spring. The highlight of the club activities for this year was the sponsoring of a Casting Exhibition put on by the National Capital Casting Club in the Boys' Gym.

Through the Wakefield Publications the student body is afforded the opportunity to voice its opinion, demonstrate creative ability, and depict Wakefield and its students.

This year THE STARSTONE, having grown and improved, has added approximately one hundred pages and increased in page size. Your STARSTONE is now a complete yearbook containing seniors, varsity sports, senior activities.

Working on a high school publication is, as you know, quite a great deal of work. Seeing your work in print and hearing the compliments for the completed product, how-

After two years of experience your STARSTONE staff feels that now and only now is it prepared to produce a book worthy of Wakefield.

Working diligently the staff has endeavored not only to bring to the student body a clear picture of life at Wakefield, but to provide a record of the first graduating class. In years to come the staff hopes that the STARSTONE will grow in quality and reputation as has our school.

In retrospect we wish to acknowledge the assistance, advice, and most important the friendship offered us by our faculty advisor, Mr. Moure.

Except for the actual printing process and coverage of news all steps in the publication of the SIGNAL took place this year in room 234, the headquarters for the school publications.

The newspaper staff which met fifth period, consisted of fifteen students with at least a "B" average in English and interest in writing, editing, and newspaper production. The journalism class, which also met fifth period, furnished reporters and the news editor while the production staff consisted of students from the graphic arts department.

Not only has THE STARSTONE improved, but the PENDULUM has also grown in many ways. This year for the first time, a full-time staff has put out three issues of a fifty page art and literary magazine complete with picture stories and color. Each issue had a special junior high and senior high section of poetry, short stories, essays, and art work. This year another change occurred, the PENDULUM was printed in the Wakefield shop by industrial arts students, thus assuring the student body of fine quality workmanship. With this growth and improvement the students of Wakefield can be assured that the staff of the PENDULUM will continue to better our new literary and art magazine.

eginning band and orchestra

For those students interested in music, the Wakefield activity program offers a variety of opportunities. Supplementing the Senior High Orchestra at Wakefield is the Junior High Orchestra, directed by Mr. Krasney. The orchestra has a program similar to that of the Senior High Orchestra and frequently performs at elementary schools in the area. The outstanding percussion and wind players double in the orchestra and band. The Junior High Band, directed by Mr. Lewis, operates on a program similar to that of the Senior High Band. During the year they also perform at primary schools. Another instrumental group is the intermediate strings. This group, a class taught by Mr. Lewis, meets the needs of those students desiring practice in order to gain a position in the orchestra. Through these groups the Junior High students learn and practice so that when they enter the Senior High, they may participate in either of our outstanding instrumental groups.

On the senior high level the Wakefield instrumental music program provides two groups; the orchestra and band. In addition to performing as a concert group, the band has this year become a uniformed marching band, which presented half-time entertainment at varsity football games. Representing Wakefield, it marched at the Bethesda Junior Chamber of Commerce Christmas Parade and at the District Music Festival. The string players of the orchestra are supplemented by the woodwind and percussion players of the band to form an orchestra. The strings, however, play alone as a chamber group. This chamber group played at the P.T.A. tea and with the woodwinds and percussion as an orchestra at the District Music Festival. Those students interested in instrumental music can find the opportunities offered by Mr. Krasney and Mr. Lewis well worth consideration.

For those students interested in vocal music the Wakefield activity system offers three organizations; eighth grade girls' chorus, eighth grade boys' chorus and ninth grade mixed chorus.

The eighth grade girls' chorus, under the direction of Miss Whittaker, is divided into three voice sections each containing group leaders. Rehearsing and practicing together the chorus performs at Wakefield assemblies and primary schools.

9th grade chorus

Consisting of over one hundred voices the eighth grade boys' chorus is directed by Mr. Fax. Since Wakefield opened three years ago the enrollment in the chorus has doubled, making it the largest junior high boys chorus in the state. On the ninth grade level the boys have become an integral part of the ninth grade mixed chorus as well as the boys' chorus. Various performances are given throughout the year both at Wakefield and other junior high and elementary schools. Small ensembles from the chorus also render special music at community functions.

The two separate eighth grade choruses combine to form the ninth grade mixed chorus the following year. The group, organized similar to the senior choir, rehearses the female voices and male voices separately two days a week, respectively under the direction of Miss Whittaker and Mr. Fax. The combined voices serve as preparation for the senior high choir.

Dear Mrs. Dimplee,
 I was wondering how you are this year. I hope to see you around next year.

The only senior high choral performing group is the Wakefield Choir which consists of 47 senior high students. Only those meeting the choir standards, a voice test by Miss Whittaker, are accepted. During the school year, the Choir entertains the student body by performing for school assemblies and at the annual spring festival. Certainly the Choir is worthy of consideration of any senior high students who enjoy singing with others and who have a real interest in music.

Through our various instrumental and choral groups members of the student body are offered the opportunity to creatively express themselves.

his was a year of fulfillment; Wakefield was graduated to Group I competition in athletics.

When we first entered Wakefield we were faced with the disadvantages of being a senior high without the benefit of varsity squads; however we adjusted to this and were determined to make ours the superior junior varsity teams in the area. We watched and waited as our teams grew and improved yearly thus enabling us as seniors to burst into the "big leagues" and attain our sought after goal — proper recognition in Group I competition.

Wakefield's '55 Varsity Football team, after three years of building toward its Group I goal, came through with the best season compiled in its brief history.

Highlighted by a 19-7 scalping of the Generals from Washington-Lee, the Warriors ran up a 9 win and 1 loss record, finishing in second place in the Northern Virginia Group I standings.

In spite of the fact that we will lose many key players in June, the remaining boys who played varsity and several fine ballplayers coming up from the Junior Varsity will form the nucleus of another good squad in '56.

After losing many key players from his Arlington County Junior High Chompionship team of last year, Mr. Meeks faced a season of re-building in 1955.

Realizing this disadvantoge, the squad worked diligently and played well together. Although they ended the year with a one win and four loss record the experience they gained this season will be invaluable to them next year when we will ogain expect o Championship team from our Junior High football squad.

Among their other accomplishments the Wakefield Cross Country squad can boast of victories in the Northern Virginia Finals, a clean sweep over the University of Richmond freshmen, and several important meet wins. The Harriers, typical of all our teams this year, have proven that Wakefield is not the "weak sister" to be looked down upon but is a strong and powerful Group One competitor.

MR. FREISEM
Coach

Having lost a coach and many good ball players to the Varsity, our Junior Varsity would seemingly be operating under a handicap this spring.

However, with an equally capable coach in Mr. Freisem and several new prospects on the Junior Varsity this year, they should finish up the season in fine style.

These boys who work unrecognized on the Junior Varsity this year will be the ones to bring more athletic fame to Wakefield in the coming years.

A community

Wakefield '56 stands not only as a symbol for student effort but for the progress and generosity of Our Community.

With the development of Our Community came the need of an educational system which would fulfill the needs of a modern Arlington. With the influx of new students Our Community, through its foresight, planned ahead for these needs, hence Wakefield was realized.

During the past few years the growth of Our Community has been displayed not only through our advanced educational system, but through the construction of larger shopping areas and the improvement of our county recreation program.

Progress, foresight, growth, improvement! Wakefield stands for all these . . . a symbol of modern and growing America.

A storybook setting in solid cherry by Thomasville is the scene with Kay Bradley and Dan Richards. The charm of the Welsh Valley collection lies in its faithful detailing and the soft, mellow fruitwood finish that recaptures the atmosphere of early Colonial days. Note the simplicity of design and the absence of gadgety fixtures.

Friendly and informal Welsh Valley adapts itself to a wide range of decorating schemes. Here, truly is furniture for the connoisseur.

Dear Mrs. Dunklee,

I don't need to tell you how much I have enjoyed being in your English Class. I just hope you can tell it.

Believe it or not I really have learned a lot in here & have loved every minute of it.

Have a good summer! I wish you all the success possible in the years to come & hope to see you next year.
